Tickets for the puppet shows

Tickets for the puppet shows are released for booking four weeks before the event.

15 September 2027: "Furzipups the Rattling Dragon"

© Kai Lüftner

by Figurentheater Köln A. Blaschke

Crackle! Fart! Roar-oo-oo-oo! - When little Furzipups the dragon tries to breathe fire, it's usually quite loud, but it doesn't go quite to plan. Yet all he wants is to finally be a proper dragon! Will he succeed? A dragon adventure for children aged 3 and over. This lively puppet theatre production is based on the popular children's book by cult author and songwriter Kai Lüftner and promises a great adventure full of humour, surprises and interactive moments, directed by Andreas Blaschke of Figurentheater Köln.

4 November 2027: "Snow White"

© Kirsten Haarmann

by the Petra Albersmann Puppet Theatre

A beautiful queen, a magical mirror, a pretty girl and seven dwarfs: these are the ingredients for a winter fairy tale. Snow White is to be put to death because she is more beautiful than the queen. She flees through the forest to the dwarfs. But her stepmother pursues the child and tries everything to get rid of her. Fortunately, the dwarves are there just in time. Eventually, Snow White accepts a poisoned apple. Can her seven friends come to her rescue once again?

3 December 2027: "Tomorrow, the Christmas cockerel arrives"

© Copyright 2016 Max Menning

by the Hille Puppille Puppet Theatre

The hens Gertrud, Linda, Juanita, Heather, the twins Babsi and Susi, and the cockerel Serge just can't seem to fall asleep. Outside, there's cleaning and scrubbing going on; the farmers are decorating the whole farmyard and singing Christmas carols, with Babsi and Susi singing along constantly, whilst the glow of the fairy lights reaches right into the furthest corner of the henhouse. So the hens decide to celebrate Christmas themselves. They clean and decorate the henhouse, make presents, look after the newly hatched chicks, argue and make up. Just as they've finally finished, there's a knock at the door. Standing at the door is a shivering, freezing goose, begging for shelter. "What an impertinence. You don't knock on Christmas Day!" Or do you? Of course, the hens solve the problem in a wonderfully human way.

15 February 2027: "Goodness me - a weather witch is running riot"

© Mathias Müller-Wolfgramm

by the Marmelock Puppet Theatre

A turbulent weather fairy tale - loosely based on Frau Holle. With all the north winds, summer thunderstorms and winter gales! Get your umbrellas out and wrap up warm! The weather witch will conjure up downpours, lightning, storms and thunder for you. Constantly interrupted by the cheeky raven Emil, the spirited weather witch knows how to tell thrilling, spine-tingling tales. Take, for instance, the favourite fairy tale about the little raven - a story about snow that ends with a violent thunderstorm. Along the way, we meet the old cloud woman, who is well versed in the art of making snow. And we watch as two young women travel through the time tunnel into the old lady's enchanting realm.

The cast includes two very different stepsisters: Marie and Marie-Luise, an imposing cockerel, a humorous cloud, a strict mother, a hot stove, a gnarled tree, a rather cheeky raven - and the spirited weather witch.

14 March 2027: "Rapunzel"

© Euler

by the Allumette Puppet Theatre

An enchanting fairy tale based on the Brothers Grimm. To satisfy his pregnant wife's craving for rampion, the desperate husband steals the coveted salad from Frau Gothel's garden. This does not go does not go unnoticed, and as punishment he must hand the child over to the sorceress immediately after the birth . But the Rapunzel girl, now all grown up, has no intention of remaining well-behaved and sweet, so the sorceress locks her away in a tower. Only a prince can still help her.

But "snip snap" - the saving locks of hair snap, the rescuer falls, and Rapunzel? She has only just managed to escape - will she find happiness on her own two feet?

Here, the play becomes a living, soft, tactile picture book with almost life-size puppets on stage. In some scenes, the actress Ludmilla Stefanie Euler invites the audience to jump right into the adventure and take part in the action on stage.

25 April 2027: "Urmel hatches from his egg"

© Die Komplizen

by the Die Komplizen puppet theatre

A zany, farcical play featuring one of the most endearing creatures in German children's literature. Based on the book of the same name by Max Kruse. On the island of Titiwu, Professor Habakuk Tibatong teaches animals to speak. Then something unexpected happens: a huge iceberg washes up on the beach. Inside is an egg. The professor and his animals hatch it. Out hatches an Urmel. A sensation!

Through various interactive elements, children can immerse themselves in the story of the prehistoric Urmel. Accompanied by music, the play will be far more than just a puppet show!

18 June 2027: "The Treasure in the Sea"

© Axel Jusseit

by the Blaues Hausen Theatre

An adventurous journey into the fascinating underwater world. For divers aged 4 and over. Volker loves being by the sea and collects things washed up on the shore. One day, he finds a message in a bottle. And inside it, a real treasure map! So he dives down and sets off on a treasure hunt. In the sea, he meets Sandy the flounder, Papulos the seahorse dad and the crystal-clear plastic bag jellyfish. But none of them know anything about the treasure. However, they do know who he could ask. So Volker plucks up all his courage and dives down into the darkness of the deep sea to seek advice from the wise octopus. And there, a big surprise awaits him...

28 June 2026: "The Most Beautiful Egg in the World" (completed)

© Die Komplizen, Hameln Braun

by Die Komplizen

The three hens, Pünktchen, Feder and Latte, argue day in, day out, as each wants to be the prettiest in the henhouse. As they cannot agree, the three go to the king. He is to make a decision. "We'll hold an egg-laying contest; each of you will lay an egg," decides the king. In this way, he hopes to compare the hens' inner qualities before making his final decision. Find out what his verdict is, what the signpost has to sing, and how three hundred hands can transform your town into a kingdom in this thrilling play.
