The open Sunday for "Bocholt Blüht" will once again make the hearts of many classic car fans beat faster. With hopefully good weather, there will once again be many old treasures to admire and admire in the city centre. Many clubs and classic car enthusiasts have been invited to come to Bocholt with their vehicles and exhibit them in the Liebfrauenviertel, at the Ostermarkt, on the market, at Neutorplatz and St.-Georg-Platz. The event will be rounded off by vintage tractors from the Barlo tractor club, which will be a source of excitement in front of the shopping arcades, and by some vintage fire engines from the Bocholt city fire brigade association, which will light up the eyes of young and old alike on Neutorplatz.

At the same time, the shops in the city centre will be inviting visitors to shop and stroll around on this first Sunday open for business in Bocholt from 1-6 pm with lots of great offers. Parking in the entire city centre is free of charge.
