Heike Mecking-Vorholt, Jens Habers, Phillip Küper and Christian Schmeink

present their match at the Alte Molkerei cultural centre in Bocholt together with players from past decades.

Two teams battle it out and the audience decides who wins and who loses.

The match will be musically supported by Andreas Birke.

...No text...

...No time to think...

...but everyone is still in a good mood...And then it starts:

When the curtain rises, there is no script, no double bottom and no second chance: in improvisation theatre, everything is created in the moment. Unique scenes develop from spontaneous ideas, calls from the audience and the creativity of the players - sometimes fast-paced and funny, sometimes surprisingly touching.

Every performance is a premiere. Whether absurd everyday stories, bizarre characters or unexpected twists and turns - nothing is predictable and that is exactly what makes it so special. The audience itself becomes the source of ideas and experiences at first hand how whole worlds are created from a single word.

With humour, speed and a great deal of enthusiasm, the ensemble brings every stage to life and ensures an evening full of laughter, amazement and unforgettable moments.

Improv theatre is spontaneous, direct and always different - in short: theatre that lives in the here and now.
