"Something in Between" focuses on the concept of space and time and explores the significance of sharing the same physical space at the same time as another person. Two dancers explore how the environment influences their bodies in motion and how space unfolds in interaction with time.

In dialogue with the exhibition, the dance performance traces the paths of new beginnings, transitions and encounters. Echoing selected works in the exhibition, "Something in Between" explores the vulnerability and power of human connection, the possibility of a new beginning, and the relationships that arise from the experience of space and time.

Supported by the LWL Freie-Szene-Fonds.
