

Peek-a-boo, where are you?

A one-person play about life in all its vibrancy, for young people aged 4 and over

Every child knows this, surely: sometimes you want to be really big - loud, funny, brave. And sometimes you'd rather be small - quiet, invisible, hidden. Sounds familiar, doesn't it? In 'Peek-a-boo, where are you?', a character plays with both sides within themselves: the brave, colourful side that wants to dance, sing and be discovered - and the quiet, curious side that prefers to hide and observe everything closely.

A playful solo theatre piece about hiding, discovering and becoming visible - closely tied to the world of childhood experience.
