Skills for your everyday life

Very real satire with Adam Schlonski

If at some point in your life, and probably only recently, you've thought: "My God, nothing works in this country anymore." Or even: "I can't stand any more news." Then you shouldn't miss Adam Schlonski's programme.

Because Adam Schlonski is definitely worse off than you are. But probably better off. Adam is the charming minimum wage survivalist. He has done all the jobs you don't want to do: from A for abattoir to Z for carer 48 hours a day. And this Adam Schlonski not only knows the most important motto in life: "Never put sand in your head!" He has much more for you: All the valuable skills you need to survive your everyday life in Germany. And with joy, too! This is real satire and genuine motivational comedy with added value!

You won't just have a lot of fun this evening. On top of that, Adam Schlonski will present you with your personalised survival blueprint. This will not only give you a zest for life. But a lust for survival and the art of survival. You have to experience it.
