Kira and Ian meet for the first time on the Scottish Isle of Skye and quickly realise that they have a lot in common.

Both are fleeing from their past and from the expectations that life places on them. They spend 36 hours together, full of joy and fun, but also emotional lows.

They both return to London and don't even realise at first that they live in the same city, usually just a few metres apart. In order to meet, they both have to conquer their demons first.
