Ramesh Shotham founded the ensemble Madras Special - New Generation, with the aim of to promote young, highly talented musicians from NRW, with the idea of focusing on encounter and dialogue in order to ultimately develop a new conception of musical culture. develop. Shotham's work has often involved the exchange of musical ideas and concepts from the of European musical culture with Indian musical traditions. The Strengthening and expanding artistic networks between artists from NRW and India is very close to his heart.

The music of Madras Special is inspired by jazz, classical South Indian ragas and tala and talas as well as current improvised world music. On the basis of complex grooves and melodies, the ensemble plans to develop a highly topical new music. Numerous instruments of the Indian culture will be combined with the "European" sounds of bass, basso "European" sounds of bass, guitar and western percussion instruments.
