Virtual reality mixes with live performance, retro style with science fiction - an exhilarating show experience for all the senses!

The three musicians Cairo, Joa and Lars have put on a show of this kind that has never been seen before, with immense technical effort, a huge portion of humour and a lot of heart and soul. For example, three vertical screens are integrated into the stage set, with which the musicians interact. But the centrepiece is the incredible music machine of the obscure Doc S. Chnösel: the O.M.G. 9000 - "omnipotential music generator". The musicians immediately realise: "We're going to revolutionise the music world with this!" If only there weren't those annoying malfunctions! But neither accidental clones nor unexpected time travel can divert the three musicians from their path to the best music show in the world. Will it work out in the end?
