Singing bells? Isn't it called "Klingglöckchen"? Springglöckchen? Tink-tink? Stinky bells??

Oh dear, things seem to be getting mixed up so close to Christmas.

But Alma the squirrel knows what she heard!

I'm sure she does!

Determined, she sets off on an adventurous search for the singing bell. In the process, she meets many animals and bravely faces all the challenges. She learns how to skate from a fox, goes sledging with a hedgehog and helps a skunk decorate a Christmas tree.

And so, with the active support of the children and the helpfulness of the forest animals, she finally succeeds in solving the mystery and in the end even becomes a guest at a very special celebration in a very special stable...

Charlotte-Maria Brückner: mezzo-soprano and narration

Svenja Kohlmann: violin and narration

Andrea Kramer-Rodermund: piano

And many other instruments.

The reduced admission price applies to children up to 14 years of age.

Information for parents:

The "core target group" of the concerts are children of about 5-8 years, but younger siblings, babies and toddlers are also welcome to come along.

Experience so far has shown that older siblings also have fun and participate enthusiastically.

There are no restrictions for children with special physical or mental conditions, anyone and everyone can participate fully here.

And since this is a family concert, not only parents but also grandparents, aunts, uncles, etc. are welcome to join in alongside the children.

The concert lasts about one hour*, but can also be a little longer -
