CANCELLED: "Bocholt reads!" - A journey of happiness with André Niedostadek across the Münsterland region

Reading for 16 April 2026 from 19:30 in the city library cancelled

Current notice (14 April): Due to illness of the author, the planned reading unfortunately has to be cancelled.

Together with the audience, he explores questions such as: What really makes people happy? What does research say about this? And how can we actively influence our own happiness?

An invitation to rediscover the Münsterland region

The journey takes you right across the Münsterland region - from impressive moated castles to idyllic lakes and enjoyable discoveries. The "blue" side of the region is as diverse as it is inspiring. The event is aimed at anyone who wants to rediscover their region and gain exciting inspiration.

"With formats such as "Bocholt reads!", we want to bring literature to life and at the same time address current topics that move people. The combination of regional reference, personal appeal and academic impulses makes this evening particularly appealing", emphasises Melanie Tenhumberg, Head of Bocholt City Library.

Reading cancelled

Unfortunately, the planned reading has to be cancelled due to the author's illness.
