Ärztenetz BOHRIS: Dr Michael Adam bids farewell

Mayor Thomas Kerkhoff praises the doctor's work // Dr Adam is a founding member of the doctors' network

Dr Michael Adam is no longer Managing Director of the BOHRIS doctors' network. As a founding member, he has played a key role in shaping the network since 2016. On Tuesday, Dr Adam was bid farewell by Mayor Thomas Kerkhoff.

"I would like to thank Michael Adam for his commitment to the doctors' network," says Thomas Kerkhoff. "Dr Adam was essentially the midwife of the doctors' network, and his commitment has played a decisive role in shaping the development of medical care in the region," says Kerkhoff.

Dr Michael Adam has been an important link between the doctors' network and the city administration since 2016. As a "networker", he is and was active in the KVWL, the General Practitioners' Association and the Bocholt Seniors' Advisory Council, among others. "He was a reliable contact for everyone involved in the network," says project coordinator Lisa Knuf from the Mayor's Office. "We wish him all the best for the future," says Knuf.

Dr Adam is leaving the management of the association. He has already been officially dismissed by the BOHRIS doctors' network.
