Michael Bruns celebrates 25 years of service to the city of Bocholt

Working as a fitter at the sewage treatment plant since 2001

The city of Bocholt congratulates Michael Bruns on his 25th anniversary of service.

Born in Bocholt, he started his career with an apprenticeship as a blacksmith specialising in vehicle construction. He then gained around ten years of experience as a fitter and welder in a mechanical engineering company. He brought this well-founded craftsmanship with him to the city of Bocholt at the beginning of 2001: After a successful selection process, he began working as a fitter at the sewage treatment plant.

Since then, Michael Bruns has been an indispensable part of the team there. With great expertise, he manufactures a wide variety of special metal constructions and reliably maintains and repairs the complex machinery. Colleagues and superiors appreciate him not only for his craftsmanship, but also for his collegiality and reliability.

The City of Bocholt congratulates Michael Bruns on his anniversary and would like to thank him for his many years of service.
