The ophthalmology specialist in Bocholt reports on common eye diseases, their symptoms, warning signs and treatment options. Eye diseases exist at any age. At what point are screenings, preventive examinations and advanced diagnostics useful? Early childhood strabismus, glaucoma, age-related macular degeneration, and corneal and retinal diseases can be detected early by an ophthalmologist and then often treated well. Tear film disorders (dry eyes) are also a common reason to consult an ophthalmologist. Interesting facts, experiences and recommendations will be followed by a Q&A session.
