Seeing-hearing-trying out at the Bocholt-Isselburg music school

20 January at the Bocholt Music School // Book your personal appointment now

On Saturday, 20 January, from 2 to 6 p.m., the Bocholt-Isselburg Music School is offering individual taster sessions under the motto "See - Listen - Try" where children, young people and adults can get to know the wide range of courses offered by the music school. There is an instrument exhibition for those who are undecided.

The "See-Listen-Try" event has been held as an open day for many years and offers anyone interested in music the opportunity to get to know a wide variety of musical instruments.

This year, interested parties can book a time slot in advance online at <https://eveeno.com/sehenhoerenausprobieren2024>, during which they can see, hear and try out the respective instrument with a maximum of two other "taster persons". The instruments will be presented on 21 January from 2 to 6 p.m. in the music school building (Salierstraße 6) and in the neighbouring Josefschule (Hohenzollernstraße 27).

Visitors can get to know brass instruments (trumpet, trombone, baritone, tuba and horn), woodwind instruments (clarinet, oboe, recorder, flute, saxophone, bassoon), keyboard instruments (piano, accordion and keyboard), guitar (acoustic and electric), string instruments (violin, viola, cello, double bass) and also percussion. The teachers will be on hand to answer questions.

For those still undecided, all instruments that can be learnt at the music school will be on display and explained. Anyone who would like to spontaneously get to know an instrument better can also get a taster session on site.

Registrations for the new school year from 1 April 2024 are possible immediately and also during the taster sessions. Further information material is available at the music school and on the website www.bocholt.de/musikschule. The online registration can also be found there.
