Spring concert with four ensembles of the music school

On Sunday from 5 pm in the Christuskirche Bocholt // Admission is free

On Sunday, May 22, the music school Bocholt-Isselburg organizes a concert with selected ensembles. It starts at 5 pm in the Christuskirche (Münsterstraße 19). Admission is free.

Four ensembles of the Music School Bocholt-Isselburg are looking forward to the spring concert.

The evening will be opened by the Ministreichers, staffed by the youngest string players in the music school, followed by the Streicherbande, the second youngest string orchestra in the music school.

The two ensembles will play canons, boogies and square dances and, as a special highlight, the hit song "How far I'll go" from the Walt Disney movie Vaiana. Marie Book, a vocal student at the School of Music, will sing along. Students from Christina Taczyk's class will accompany the ensembles on the piano.

The second half of the concert will feature the recorder ensemble and recorder trio with a colorful mix of Renaissance, High Baroque, jazz and rag, and also pop music.

The four ensembles are led by the music school teachers Christiane Schröder and Theres Kommescher, who will give the audience an insight into the versatility of the ensemble work of the music school with this concert. Admission starts at 4:30 pm. Admission is free.
