Agnes Klinkenberg of the Bocholt city administration retires

When it came to student registrations at schools or school regulations of all kinds, no one could fool Agnes Klinkenberg: Now the 65-year-old is retiring from the Bocholt city administration.

For 22 years, the trained bank clerk worked for the administration, first as school secretary at the Martin and Kreuz schools and later in the school division, whose organizational merger with the youth welfare office she actively supported in 2011. Klinkenberg remained friendly and calm, conscientious and correct even in stressful situations. Colleagues appreciated her collegial nature.
