RADTRENDS trade fair launched at Lake Aasee

Bocholt - The RADTRENDS trade fair is officially open. This Saturday and tomorrow, Sunday, the fair for families and cyclists will take place from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Aasee leisure centre.

Among other things, there will be art bike demonstrations, special exhibitions of sports and leisure bikes and a hands-on programme in front of and in the leisure hall.

"We have a great programme today and tomorrow for everyone who is enthusiastic about cycling", says Mayor Thomas Kerkhoff. Together with City Planning Councillor Daniel Zöhler, Hans Schliesing from the Mobility and Environment Department and the city's environmental officer Angela Theurich, he visited the opening of the fair on Saturday morning.

Trade fair on two days

Many Bocholders took advantage of the sunny Saturday afternoon to take a walk around the exhibition centre. "There is something here for athletes as well as for children and families", says environmental officer Angela Theurich. "Even a world champion in artistic cycling will be here to perform daring stunts", says Theurich.

The fair will take place on Saturday, 23 March and Sunday, 24 March from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the leisure facility on Lake Aa. Admission is free.
